

HOME RESET AI

The Whole Home Reset

A room-by-room system to reset your entire home into a space that actually feels calm to live in.

"A calm home isn't about having less. It's about everything having a place."

HOME RESET AI

Your Home, Reset From the Ground Up

Read this first

A cluttered, chaotic home doesn't happen overnight, and it doesn't get fixed in one furious weekend either — that approach usually just moves the mess around and burns you out. This reset works room by room, over as many days as you need, with a repeatable four-step method for each space: clear, sort, assign a home, and maintain.

The Four-Step Method, Every Room

- ☐ Clear — take everything out or fully see what's there
- ☐ Sort — keep, donate, trash, relocate
- ☐ Assign a home — every item that stays gets one specific spot
- ☐ Maintain — a simple rule that keeps it from drifting back

Where the Chaos Usually Starts

The entryway sets the tone for the whole home

Step	Your notes
Clear — empty the entry area completely
Sort — shoes, bags, mail, keys into categories
Assign a home — one spot for each category
Maintain — a rule (e.g. "shoes off, in the bin, immediately")

The Room That Resets Every Day

Focus on what you reach for most

Step	Your notes
Clear — one zone at a time (counters, one cabinet, pantry shelf)
Sort — expired items out, duplicates out, keep what you use
Assign a home — group by how you cook, not just by item type
Maintain — a nightly "counters clear before bed" rule

The One-In-One-Out Rule

For kitchen gadgets and tools especially: a new one in means an old one out. This alone prevents most kitchen clutter from returning.

Your Actual Wardrobe, Not the Aspirational One

Keep what you wear, not what you might wear someday

Step	Your notes
Clear — everything out, including the back-of-closet items
Sort — worn in the last year stays; "someday" pieces get honest scrutiny
Assign a home — by category and frequency of use, not just by color
Maintain — a seasonal mini-check-in, not a full redo

Small Space, Big Relief

Usually the fastest room to reset — start here if you need momentum

Step	Your notes
Clear — every drawer and cabinet, all at once
Sort — expired products out, half-used duplicates consolidated
Assign a home — daily-use items at the front, backups behind
Maintain — wipe counters nightly, restock check monthly

Where Everyone's Stuff Ends Up

The room that needs the clearest "homes" for things

Step	Your notes
Clear — surfaces first, then storage furniture
Sort — what belongs here vs. what migrated from another room
Assign a home — baskets or bins for the "floating" items (chargers, remotes, mail)
Maintain — a 10-minute nightly reset before bed

AI companion prompt: "I'm resetting my [room]. Here's what tends to pile up there: [list items]. Help me design simple 'homes' for each category and a maintenance rule I could actually stick to."

Your Room-by-Room Progress Tracker

Reset at your own pace — this isn't a race

Room	Date completed	Maintenance rule set
Entryway
Kitchen
Closet/Bedroom
Bathroom
Living space

When It Drifts Back

It will, at least a little — that's normal, not failure. A quarterly 20-minute check-in per room catches drift before it becomes a full re-reset.

RESET COMPLETE

A Home That Finally Matches How You Want to Feel

Not perfect, not magazine-ready — just calm, and yours.

Continue with the Declutter Challenge or the Room Organization Planner.