

CEO GIRL AI

The Small Business Content & Marketing Kit

Step 6 of 6: Launch week ends. The business doesn't.
This is your sustainable content and marketing rhythm
going forward.

"Consistent and unremarkable beats brilliant and abandoned."

CEO GIRL AI

WELCOME

Marketing After the Launch High

Read this first

Launch week runs on adrenaline. The months after run on a system, or they don't run at all. This kit builds the content rhythm that keeps bringing in customers without requiring a new burst of motivation every week — content pillars, a simple weekly calendar, ready-to-use prompts, and a repurposing method so one idea becomes five pieces of content instead of one.

By the end, you'll have:

- ☐ 3-4 content pillars tied directly to your offer and customer
- ☐ A simple, repeatable weekly content calendar
- ☐ Caption formulas and AI prompts you can reuse indefinitely
- ☐ A repurposing method to stretch one idea into a week of content
- ☐ A monthly marketing review to know what's actually working

Choosing Your Content Pillars

3-4 topics you can talk about forever without running out

Content pillars keep you from staring at a blank caption box every day. Pick topics that connect directly to your offer and your ideal customer's world — not just things you find interesting.

Pillar	What it covers	How it connects to your offer
1.
2.
3.
4.

Your Weekly Content Calendar

One repeatable structure, not a new plan every week

Day	Content type	Which pillar
Monday	Educational / tip
Tuesday	Behind-the-scenes / personal
Wednesday	Customer story or testimonial
Thursday	Offer mention / soft pitch
Friday	Community / engagement post

Adjust to Your Real Life

Five days a week isn't a requirement — it's a starting template. Cross out days that aren't realistic for you and keep the ones you can actually sustain for a full month.

Caption Formulas & AI Prompts

Reusable structures so you're never starting from zero

Three Caption Formulas

The Myth-Bust: "You've been told [common belief]. Here's why that's not quite right, and what actually works instead."

The Before/After: "6 months ago I [struggle]. Today I [result]. Here's what changed."

The Direct Ask: "If you're dealing with [problem], [offer name] was built for exactly this. Here's what's inside."

AI companion prompt: "My content pillar this week is [pillar]. My ideal customer is [brief description]. Write 3 caption ideas using the myth-bust, before/after, and direct-ask formulas."

AI companion prompt: "Here's a rough idea for a post: [your idea]. Tighten this into a caption with a strong opening line that would stop my ideal customer from scrolling."

One Idea, Five Pieces of Content

Repurposing so you're not starting from scratch constantly

Pick one solid idea — a tip, a lesson, a story — and stretch it across formats instead of inventing something new every single day.

Format	How this idea becomes it
A carousel or list post
A short video or voiceover script
A single-image caption post
An email to your list
A story/status update, casual tone

AI companion prompt: "Here's one idea: [your idea]. Help me turn it into a short video script, a carousel outline, and a casual story post — same idea, three formats, three different tones."

Engagement & DM Scripts

Marketing isn't just posting — it's the follow-up conversations

Situation	Script
Someone comments with interest	"So glad this resonated! Would you want more info on [offer]? Happy to send details."
Someone asks a question in DMs	Answer fully first, then: "If this is something you're working through, [offer] was built exactly for this — want the link?"
Someone says "I'll think about it"	"Totally understand! No pressure at all — I'll leave the door open if you have any questions in the meantime."

Your Monthly Marketing Review

Reuse this page every month to know what's actually working

Question	Your answer
Which pillar or post type got the most genuine engagement?
Which post led to an actual sale or inquiry?
What felt draining to create this month?
What's one thing to try differently next month?

THE FULL SYSTEM, COMPLETE

You Built This the Whole Way Through

Idea, offer, customer, price, launch, and now a marketing rhythm that doesn't rely on burnout. That's a real business, not just a good week.

Revisit any step in the CEO Girl AI system any time you're building your next offer.

CEO GIRL AI